VAST TERRITORY INUNDATED

Estimates Made by Government Engineers of Two Weeks' Deluge in Mississippi Valley Present Appalling Figures—Property Loss Will Reach $10,000,000 — Many People Yet Marooned on Roofs With Water Sweeping Past in Mad Rush.

St. Louis, April 8.—As a result of a two-weeks flood in the Mississippi valley, 30 persons have been drowned, 3,000 are homeless, 2,000 square miles of country inundated and a financial loss of $10,000,000 sustained. These figures were arrived at by government engineers and officials of state levee boards engaged in battling with the ravaging sweep of the Mississippi river from points in Illinois to threatened places in Missouri and Arkansas.

Water is pouring into Arkansas through three new breaks in the levee south of Memphis. These gave way and several hundred square miles are subject to flooding.

Railroad traffic in these sections is practically paralyzed.

Hundreds of persons still are menaced by the tide of the river at points in lower Missouri, northwest Tennessee and Arkansas. They are marooned on houseboats in trees and on anchored rafts directly in the sweep of the rampaging river. Conservative judgment at Memphis was expressed in belief that the great majority of these flood prisoners will be rescued.

Golden Lake Levee Holds.

The most dangerous point in the flood situation was at Golden Lake, the Arkansas levee guarding the pressure of the Mississippi. Had this embankment been breached it would have added to the tide already sweeping through northwest Arkansas. The Golden Lake levee held and as it continued to battle the swirl of the flood, danger in the southern part of the valley increased. As long as the flood remains in the levees north the strain on the southern embankments increases.

Hourly the danger zone works southward. In the upper reaches, the Ohio and Mississippi rivers are practically at a standstill. This means that the flood's crest now is exerted on the dikes from the Missouri line southward.

OHIO-ERIE CANAL FAVERED

Washington, April 8.—Important recommendations for legislation affecting the railroads of the country that own or are interested in steamship lines are contained in the final report of the United States national waterways commission, just made public. The commission recommends to congress that the power of the interstate commerce commission be extended so as to include control over all water lines. The commission recommends further that all water lines be made subject to the same rules and regulations as are now imposed on railroad corporations insofar as they are applicable. The commission says the time has come to take steps to prevent the elimination of water competition through railroad ownership. The waterways commission is headed by Senator Burton of Ohio, and among its members is Senator Smith of Michigan.

"When Diaz left office there was tionary party, compelled congress by threats of force to call for an election earlier than was originally planned, he would never have been elected president.

Quick to Violate Promises.

"From the very first he violated his promises and the principles for which he and the revolutionists had been fighting. By what was almost his first official act he violated the very thing which we thought we had won—the sanctity of the free ballot. By threats and violence he forced into office men unknown to Mexico and who were mere tools in his hands. Members of his family received positions. The present head of the government party is Gustave Madero, the president's brother; the minister of finance is his uncle; the head of the department of mines and agriculture is his first cousin.

"When Diaz left office there was $32,000,000 in the treasury, all of which has been wasted by Madero. Gustave Madero got $700,000 for alleged expenses in the campaign without making an accounting, and now $3,500,000 is about to be paid for land which is not worth half that amount.

"Madero has accomplished all but the complete ruin of Mexico." The rest of the statement deals with the reforms which the revolutionists will try to effect if their cause is successful. The last thing they want is an intervention on the part of any foreign nation, and they say they will try to remove the cause for such. They had nothing to say concerning Magdalena bay.

Middletown, N. Y., April 8.—South Fallsburg, Sullivan county, was devastated by a tornado, which demolished buildings, threw railroad cars from the tracks, uprooted trees and injured a number of people, none of them fatally. There had been several light showers and the temperature had fallen from 65 to 40 when a black cloud made its appearance in the west. It swept down on the village with a roar. Buildings rocked on their foundations and roofs of buildings and small trees and limbs of trees were flying through the air.

Scores of people, thinking that their dwellings were about to collapse, rushed to the streets only to be blown over or knocked down by flying missiles. The big three-story general store of Chester Couch was razed. Hath's big feed mill and Garner's cider mill were partly demolished and a number of other buildings were unrooted.

The publication of the articles was precipitated by an editorial in a San Francisco paper on April 4, which characterized Ruef as a "human hyena" and condemned the agitation for his release.

Directors of public utility corporations and railroads, public officials and politicians are named by Ruef in his prologue, and he declares he will show how money was promised and paid.

AMERICAN AVIATION CIRCUIT PROPOSED

Four Ohio Cities Included In Aero Club Scheme.

New York, April 8.—Following the precedent set in Europe last year, a great American aviation circuit is being organized by the Aero Club of America, with the co-operation of the Aero clubs of Illinois, Michigan, Milwaukee, Kansas City, St. Louis, Indianapolis and Cincinnati. The distance of the proposed circuit is 1,860 miles and the starting and finishing points will be at Chicago. It is planned to have the race during the month of August, preceding the international cup race, the date of which is Sept. 9. These are the only two events in which the Wright brothers have agreed not to interfere on account of patent rights.

The route proposed is Chicago, Milwaukee, Cedar Rapids, Des Moines, Omaha, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Jefferson City, St. Louis, Charleston, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and Chicago. Stops will be made at each city, where there will be a "control" station, and possibly at other cities situated along this route. The circuit is open to all licensed pilots of all nationalities, who will be free from injunction under the Wright patents.

Already the various cities have pledged considerable of the money towards the prize fund, which it is said will be $100,000, including a grand prize of $25,000, second prize $5,000 and a third $2,500.

Three Posse Scour Country For Man Who Killed Six.

Tacoma, Wash., April 8.—Three posse of woodsmen are seeking John Tornow, the outlaw, supposed to have murdered six people about the headwaters of the Wynoochee river, north of Gray's Harbor. Reward offered by the authorities aggregate $5,000. Tornow's brother believes the hunted man is demented. He has asked the posse to use the greatest caution. Probably no effort will be made to capture or now alive.

Francisco I. Madero, President
Of Mexico, and Senora Madero

MOST within a year Francisco I. Madero has had the experience of being a hunted insurrectionist and of being engaged, like his great predecessor, Diaz, in crushing a formidable rebellion. Through his changes of fortune, even for a part of the time in the field, he has had the enjoyment and companionship of Senora Madero, who it is said, has been a main wheel during his eventful career. She managed his household on a ranch before the war, joined him when he was jailed as a political prisoner, followed him into exile and rode with him to the attack on Juarez, turned the tide of his fortunes. President Madero is a small man, five feet three or four inches, of an excitable temperament. He is a vegetarian and does not drink or smoke. When he assumed the direction of the revolution he was practically without military experience. His period of residence in the United States was not long enough to give him a command of English, and he uses it in that language with difficulty.

CONTINUATION OF OLD ONE

We That Madero Is Dismal Failure As Ruler and That He Headed Out Against Diaz Because Other One Was Lacking—Has Depleted National Treasury and Provided No Resources For His Relatives—Tell Us That They Will Do If They Win.

New York, April 8.—Manuel J. Gómez, minister plenipotentiary from the state of Oaxaca, fired the first gun in the campaign of education to be made by the three Mexicans who were here to tell us what the real situation is down in Mexico and why they revolted from the rule of Diaz. He issued a statement which he said was straight from the heart.

The present revolution is merely a recurrence of the one which began the rule of President Diaz as unbearable. At that time Madero seized the opportunity to take upon himself the entire country from the uprising. It is not that he was called by the people. He was accepted as the leader of the movement because no one else forward. Less than a month ago Madero assumed the leadership and found that he was not only very impractical, but lacked fundamental qualities of leadership and in addition was working for his own selfish purposes.

It is estimated that this canal will cost about $200,000,000.

WILSONS PRIVATE LETTERS NABBED

Governor Says Thieves Welcome to Their Loot.

Chicago, April 8.—Burglars with undeniably political affiliations raided the rooms of Governor Woodrow Wilson in the Sherman House during his absence at St. Mary's rectory and stole all his private correspondence, vouchers and other documents. Two men did the work, which was carefully planned. They escaped in a taxicab.

Governor Wilson said he regretted the loss of letters which were strictly personal but predicted that the thieves and their employer would be disappointed, as there was nothing that could be published that would injure him or his cause.

A large force of detectives was put on the case. They have good descriptions of the thieves. Considerable valuable silver and other property in Governor Wilson's room was not touched. The governor's dress suit and extra underclothing were included in the plunder.

It was known that just before the tornado struck there were several people in Couch's store. Crowds quickly surrounded the debris and commenced tearing away the beams and plaster in the hope of rescuing alive some of those supposed to be buried. Just as the crowd began to work throwing aside the debris, there was a shout and a man's head was seen to pop out of the hole in the roof. He said there were seven other persons alive under the roof. Rev. J. C. Carley, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who was calling at the house at the time of the storm, was next dug out. He had sustained a broken leg. Then Postmaster Charles Denniston, who occupied part of the building and had charge of the postoffice in the same building, climbed out and helped out his wife. In quick succession followed Mr. and Mrs. George Atwell and Samuel Lynch of Mountaintop, who were visiting Postmaster Denniston. All were cut, bruised and badly shaken.

There was a general aspect of ruin about the town. At the Ontario & Western station several loaded cars which stood on a switch were unrooted and several empty cars were blown from the rails. A number of houses were twisted from their foundations. The tornado seemed to center its intensity at Fallsburg, for although there were high winds and rain all around the village, no great damage was reported elsewhere.

ORIGIN OF FIRE IS UNKNOWN

Fire Started at 1:15 and Drew Almost Entire Population to the Scene--Wm. Jefferson Saves Masonic Records.

The fire demon visited Bloomingburg at an early hour this morning, and all that remains of the Bloomingburg Masonic Temple is a pile of smouldering ruins, bearing mute witness to the havoc wrought during the night, while the blistered and scarred buildings adjoining the ruins tell of the valiant hand-to-hand fight made by the heroic volunteer fire fighters who, by their strenuous efforts, saved a large portion of the town from being reduced to ashes.

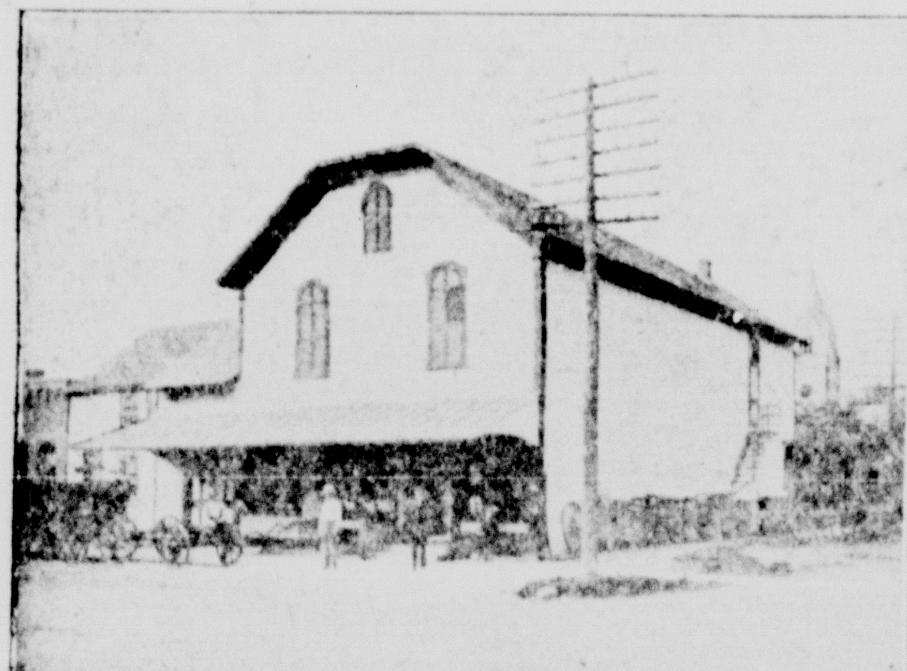

As a result of the fire, the Masonic and Eastern Star lodges are render-time the entire building was wrapped in flames which for a time threatened to wipe a large portion of Bloomingburg out of existence. Harry Elliott and James Meyer were first to discover the fire while returning from this city. At that time the blaze was confined to a small shed in the rear of the main building.

The alarm was quickly spread and the startled citizens aroused by the clanging bell of the Methodist church. A glance was sufficient to tell them that the fire fiend was busy. Practically every person in the village was soon upon the scene. William Jefferson was among the first, and by hard work forced his way into the Masonic Hall and saved valuable records. He escaped, choking and almost overcome by the dense smoke, by climbing through a front window and dropping to the sidewalk.

Bloomingburg is without any fire fighting apparatus and with this great handicap, the volunteer fighters formed bucket brigades and poured water upon the burning buildings and upon those adjoining, until the flames were confined to the one block.

From the first it was realized that the Temple, which contained Hester & Son's hardware store on the first floor, was doomed, and the work of drenching other buildings and coved homeless, and one of the town's foremost business enterprises, the Hester & Son Hardware store, was wiped out, while the Bloomingburg Building and Loan Association building stands blackened and badly damaged by the flames.

The building destroyed stood on the west side of the main street in the heart of town, immediately south of the public square. It was a large two-story frame structure, recently remodeled and was one of the largest buildings in the village.

The Building & Loan structure, built of brick and standing on the south side of the temple, was damaged to the extent of $500. Insurance covers a large portion of the damage.

Erasing the roof with salt commenced and was kept up until all danger was past. Fire brands fell throughout the town but were extinguished by the ever vigilant citizens.

Mayor Creath telephoned to this city for assistance in extinguishing the fire, but the nature of the equipment here is such that no assistance could have been rendered.

BANKS CLOSE TOMORROW P. M.

The city banks will all be closed tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 3 o'clock, on account of the funeral of Duncan McLean, who was an officer in one of the banks.

Find "Evidence" But No "Shearers"

In response to complaint that gambling had been in progress in the upper rooms of three or four places in the city, the police made a visit to a number of the "parlors" Saturday afternoon, but found no one who looked guilty of the crime.

That there was "evidence" in the shape of game tables and the like, was admitted, but the tables were not busy Saturday afternoon when the visit by the police was made, and were left undisturbed.

This is the second time a general visit has been conducted recently, and while there was "evidence" of the nature above mentioned, no one was found in the "shearing" act.

FRONT OF THE PEOPLE'S BANK OF BLOOMINGBURG

This building is 60 feet south of the burned structure. It connects with the Hains building in which the K. of P. Hall is located.

If the fire had come during a dry windy time, the village would have been at the fire's mercy, but coming as it did, with surrounding buildings damp and the night rather quiet, the fire was held within bounds, although a number of times the fighters were driven back only to resume the attack with greater determination than ever.

The Masons will probably replace the structure with a large brick temple costing several times what the old building did, although nothing definite has been decided upon.

The origin of the fire is still undecided, some maintaining that it was the work of an unknown fire fiend, while the majority are of the opinion that it was due to spontaneous combustion or to a match carelessly thrown into a pile of inflammable material.

Talk of better fire protection is plentiful in the town and the village council may take action upon the purchase of fire fighting apparatus.

Mayor Creath telephoned to this city for assistance in extinguishing the fire, but the nature of the equipment here is such that no assistance could have been rendered.

CHIEF LANDS HIS MAN AFTER HARD STRUGGLE

MAYOR TRIES THREE CASES

Joe Collins, Powerful Negro, Resists Arrest and Makes Use of Mace Necessary---Jay Cole Gets in Bad in Giving Away Whiskey.

Roy Spragg, white, had absorbed too much tanglefoot, and he was landed in the lock-up Saturday night, drawing a fine of $5 and the costs Monday morning, and going to jail until it could be raised. He was released a short time afterwards when friends came to his rescue with the necessary amount.

Jay Cole, one of the "outcasts" who has been back on probation, was arrested upon a larceny charge. Cole, who is colored, had been employed at the Sales Pavilion, and was charged with the theft of two quarts of whiskey and a pair of $10 riding boots. The whiskey had been in a trunk owned by some out-of-town horsemen. The boots belonged to Rankin Paul.

Chief McCoy had succeeded in catching the boots and restoring them to their owner, having found the hidden in a stall under some straw.

Mayor Harvey W. Smith had three cases for consideration Monday morning, one of them being intoxication, another drunk and resisting an officer, and the third for larceny, which eventually developed into a bootlegging case.

Joe Collins, a negro of massive build who has been employed on the

BLOOMINGBURG M. E. CHURCH

This church stands 150 feet back of the Masonic Temple building. The whiskey bottles were found, it was also ascertained that Cole had given some of his friends a quart of whiskey. Not being able to pay the larceny charge, a charge of furnishing intoxicants, was placed against him, to which he entered a plea of guilty.

Mayor Smith withheld sentence until four o'clock this evening, allowing Cole to go back to jail awaiting sentence.

Grand Jury Is In Session

The April grand jury convened Monday morning, and indications that it will require three days to complete the work before it is dismissed. The number of 51 have been subpoenaed to appear Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

It was found necessary to set six substitutes for members who excused. These substitutes are J. McMahon, Wm. Davenport, Henry Limes, Dee Maddux, A. M. Bonner and Clarke Rowe.

The present session of the jury will, in all probability, be busiest for some time.

EASTER IN THE CHURCHES

Services Attended by Large Congregations in Each of City Churches.

WEATHER CONDITIONS NOT GOOD

Special Easter Programs Proved a Magnate Strong Enough to Attract at Both Morning and Evening Service.

Praise of praise in all the churches triumphantly proclaimed the glad Easter morn and hundreds of worshippers assembled for the joyous services.

The morning rose chill and gray, threatening to blight all hopes of a day in accord with the Easter spirit, but by noon the sun had broken through the clouds and while the day continued cool, it was bright enough to invite Easter bonnets out for the afternoon's promenade.

The different churches were all filled both morning and evening, and a wealth of Easter bloom, ascension gies, tulips, daffodils, carnations and other flowers banked the chancels and filled the auditoriums with fragrance.

The pastors gave eloquent expression to Easter glory and choirs rendered joyous anthems.

The series of meetings closed at Grace church Saturday night, but their effect carried reverential devotion to the Easter services.

The Sunday school made an Easter offering for missions of $125.

The Knights Templar attended the morning sermon in a body and listened to a fine Easter sermon by Rev. Cook and special music by the choir in the evening. Miss Edith Gardner directed a very pleasing Easter service. Miss Light doing efficient organ work.

Mrs. Morna Blessing Chapman played a beautiful organ prelude.

The choir was prompt in attack and rendered difficult anthems well, especially considering that the protracted meetings had prevented the usual practices.

Mr. James Kneisley assisted in his artistic violin work and played a very beautiful solo. A pretty vocal solo by Miss Claribel Smith, with violin obbligato was much enjoyed. Miss Gardner took the incidental anthem solos.

At Wesley chapel the Sunday school had an attractive afternoon Easter service.

The Sunday school of the Presbyterian church launched the day's services with a special Easter program, including splendidly sung choruses by the children's choir and a cunting solo by Ray Snyder. Supt. Zener had it in charge.

The communion service, with special music, was held in the morning and over thirty new members received into the church, most of them in profession. Rev. Campbell received the new members impressively.

The evening song service, in charge of Mrs. Winona Wilson Shoop, was inspirational in its beauty, one of the most musical song services ever given by the choir. There was an unusually large body of singers and strong organ and orchestral support. Mrs. Lillie G. Davis' organ solos and difficult accompaniments revealed immense effort and demonstrated her growing ability in handling the instrument.

Mrs. Carey Howland, pianist; Miss Kessler, Mr. Howland, violinists; Dr. Stitt, viola, and Mr. Elmer Zimmerman, cornetist, formed an excellent orchestra.

The anthems were melodious and joyous, rendered with fine spirit and volume, the opening one, Jules Gratin, "Hosanna," Walter Springer the soloist.

Four sweet girlish voices, Misses Adah Woodward, Seannah Kellough, Dorothy Fullerton, Lillian Davis, sang a quartet with chorus accompaniment, and the closing anthem, "They Have Taken Away My Lord" Stainer, with trio by Mrs. Shoop. Messrs. Kibbler and Sprenger, was exceptionally fine.

The piece de resistance of the program was Mrs. Shoop's exquisite solo, "The Resurrection"—Rodney, with viola, organ and piano accompaniment. Mrs. Shoop was in admirable voice. Two orchestral numbers, a lovely violin solo by Miss Mazzie Kessler, and a very beautiful violin and viola duet by Dr. Stitt and Mr. Howland were artistic additions to the program.

Mrs. Mary Goldsberry Burgett's mellow contralto voice was effective in a beautiful recitative Easter solo, "As It Began to Dawn."

The audience sat in hushed silence as the white robed choir passed out singing in the distance.

At the First Baptist church Rev. West delivered a beautiful Easter sermon in the morning and there was special music.

Miss Ella Hess sang a pretty solo and Messrs. Hicks and Burch took the tenor and bass solos in buoyant Easter anthems. Miss Helen Willis played the accompaniments and beautiful organ numbers.

Rev. Hostetter preached an inspiring Easter sermon to the Christian church congregation in the morning, accompanied by Easter anthems. In the evening the Junior Endeavors, under the direction of Rev. Hostetter and Supt. Goodwin, put on a very pretty and well rendered cantata, "In Nature's Wonderland."

The Episcopalians began Easter with a morning service at seven o'clock at the home of Mr. George Hitchcock. Mr. Thompson, a lay reader, came over from Dayton and conducted impressive Easter services at 11 o'clock and at 4 o'clock the vested choir, singing anthems and Easter hymns.

Easter is always a glorious day at St. Colman's church and the services of yesterday were on their usually elaborate scale.

The altars were magnificently decorated in cut flowers, silkax and electric lights.

Resurrection masses were said at 7:30 and 9:30. Father Fogarty preaching excellent sermons at both. Every one received holy communion at the early mass.

The Junior choir sang the early mass, and the full choir rendered the High mass, with solos by John Culpen, who was in splendid voice. Miss Mary McDonald did good work as organist.

Always Tired, With Little Vitality

MODERN TONIC, TONA VITA, WILL SURELY BUILD YOU UP AGAIN.

Are you one of the run-down, half sick nervous people with which the country is filled? Do you feel tired all the time with very little vitality? Do you sleep badly and feel as worn out in the morning as when you went to bed? Is your circulation poor and do you catch cold easily? Have you stomach trouble and an irregular appetite? Are you nervous, moody and depressed?

These are sure symptoms of nervous debility. If you are struggling along in this miserable condition the best thing you can possibly do for yourself is to take "Tona Vita" the wonderful new tonic that has the unqualified endorsement of more physicians than any other medicine ever offered to the public.

Here is what the Rev. Gustave Frederick, pastor of the Evangelistic church, Center Street, Milwaukee, Wis., has to say of it: "Judging from my own experience

I do not hesitate to say that 'Tona Vita' is an extremely valuable preparation. I have not only used it myself, but other members of my family have been taking it with highly satisfactory results.

"So far as my own case is concerned I have been in a run-down condition for a year or so, tiring easily and being troubled with sleeplessness. I lacked vitality and caught cold readily, and my digestion and appetite were poor. I was depressed in mind and body and very nervous.

"I now feel stronger than for a long time. I have more energy and my work is done with much less effort. I sleep and eat better and feel as though rejuvenated."

Tona Vita acts quickly. You will be surprised how rapidly it will build you up.

Brown's Drug Store, Court and Fayette streets have the agency for Tona Vita in Washington C. H. and will return the purchase price if not entirely satisfactory. The Approved Formula Co., Dayton, O.

EASTER WEDDING.

A quiet Easter morning wedding took place at the Church of Christ at half past eight o'clock, when Miss Fannie Jones and Mrs. Carson Maddox were married by Rev. Hostetter.

Both young people have been actively identified with the church and all its interests and it was fitting that their marriage ceremony should be performed within the sanctity of the altar.

A dozen friends assembled with them.

The bride was all Easter brightness, dressed entirely in white, gown, hat, shoes and gloves.

After congratulations the young couple took their usual part in the morning's services.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Maddox have a wide circle of friends who will be present of their nuptials with felicitations.

The bride has been in the offices of Mrs. R. M. Hughey and C. E. Page for several years and her efficiency there makes her departure a matter of regret both to the doctors and their clientele.

Mr. Maddox is building a cosy home in Milwood. Until its completion they will reside with the bride's mother, Mrs. Jane Jones, on Shady-side.

THE BATTLE AGAINST DUST.

We are now emerging from the "winter of our discontent" and it has been a long and severe one too, and are once more face to face with that other problem which is with us during the warmer months of the year—how to get rid of or keep under control the dust.

The dust that commences to blow in clouds from behind every passing vehicle with the coming of the first warm days of spring is an ever present nuisance, and the authorities now say a menace to health, must be dealt with.

But how?

With oil or water?

And if we decide on either oil or water we have still to answer that other stumper.

How?

To oil or sprinkle one street in spots only does not bring relief in proportion to the cost and effort.

To oil or sprinkle one or several streets only while other streets and alleys are left unmoleded to manufacture their material for dirt clouds and turn over the product to the greatest of common carriers to be wafted into every section of the city, is, if not an entire waste of money, not a profitable investment.

Whatever plan is finally adopted should, if it is possible to do so under the laws of the state and city, considering both health and comfort, be done universally throughout the length and breadth of the city.

There are many—unfortunately too many—people who would, if they could do so gladly contribute their share toward bringing about an abatement of the discomfort and the menace which comes with flying dust clouds. Provision should, if possible be made to take care of these conditions which we must all acknowledge exist.

This problem like many others would be easy of solution if those who could bear the burden would do so uncomplainingly. Those who cannot and will not do their fair share for the general good should be made to see the error of their way and the fact that there are those who would willingly but cannot bear any proportion of the burden, should not be permitted to deny a community relief.

Ideal Fiction

By SAM WALTER FOSS

Public Library Should Contain Good Novels

THE IDEAL attitude of the public library toward fiction should be one of severity, tempered by toleration. A public library should buy all the good novels and buy them in large numbers. The bad novels it should not buy at all. All a public library, then, has to do in the matter, in reference to any novel, is to discover whether it is good or bad.

This is a very simple thing to state, but a well-nigh impossible thing to do. There are easy-going readers who think there is some good in all novels, and there are implacable haters of modern fiction who stiffly maintain that, at present, no good novels are written at all. From a committee made up of the implacable, the easy-goers and intermediate types of critics the public librarian should get varied estimates of all the novels published, and from these varied estimates draw his own conclusions.

These conclusions will frequently be wrong, but he will have lived up to the best light he has. He will probably find some good novels. To deny that good novels are written today is to make a too sweeping impeachment of our literary output. Let the librarian do his best to find these good novels and then duplicate and reduplicate them many times.

It is undoubtedly a misuse of one's time and a perversion of his intellectual faculties to read fiction, even of the best quality, exclusively. No one knows better than the librarian that there are a large number of readers who never do read anything but fiction. They have lost the power to wrestle with books that deal with realities. The fiction drunkard has lost the intellectual stamina needed to clutch and grip the great thinkers who write real books—science, philosophy, literature. Much fiction has made them mentally flabby—their mental muscles are paralyzed by intellectual dissipation. They are literary drunkards, and all good librarians have an interest in their reformation.

Good fiction presupposes a considerable degree of intelligence in its readers. If it deals with the eternal verities of human nature it must make its readers interested in many and varied domains of thought. A good novel by a real thinker should stimulate its reader to broad investigations, and, sometimes, to long-continued research. It is hard for a librarian, even with the co-operation of many helpers, to select the small percentage of good fiction from the large percentage of the bad. His action, whatever it may be in the matter, will not be without vociferous protest on the part of the public. But let him do his best and abide in com-placent good nature.

Enraged Bull Chases Woman

Mrs. J. W. Brannon, living on the W. W. Fenner farm near Yatesville, had a very unpleasant and exciting experience a few days ago when she was passing through a field in which a large bull was kept. The bull made after her and she fled to a nearby tree where she kept circling the tree, keeping it between the bull and herself. She carried a rake in her hand and frantically beat the enraged beast with it, but to no avail.

A son of George Deinier, beholding the danger which threatened Mrs. Brannon, ran to her rescue, and with a club drove the brute away.

It was a close call for Mrs. Brannon and one she does not care to have repeated.

Poetry-Today

CHEER UP.

Have you noticed whenever you're gloomy;
When your future holds clouds in its sky;
That you turn to the past for solace;
And dream of the days gone by?
You remember the sun was brighter in summer when you were a boy.
And the winter you know was lighter
And the springtime teaming with joy.

The river was warmer in those days
And the grass a little more green;
And the roses a little bit redder,
And the trees of a glossier sheen,
But the world has been going a long time.

And it hasn't been changed at all.
So perhaps it's your heart that's changing.

From the sunshine of life into tail,
For the sun is still bright to someone;
And the roses are just as red,
And the trees and grass are brightly green.

As they will be after you're dead.

SENSIBLE CUSTOM

Spring Best Time to Renew Blood

Spring is nature's season for renewing the life of things, and for sweeping away the impurities that have accumulated in the winter.

This custom of taking a remedy for the blood during spring months is based on hard common sense. Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, stands far above all other spring medicines in value because it contains the element needed to enrich and purify the blood.

J. A. Thiel of Bronx Borough, N. Y., says: "Feeling the need of a good spring medicine to purify my blood and build up my strength I started using Vinol in April. It has done me so much good in every way that I believe it is in all respects just as valuable a remedy as you claim."

We guarantee that Vinol will build up and strengthen all weakened, run-down persons. Try Vinol we will give back your money if it does not satisfy you perfectly.

LOCKED ANTLERS IN GLACIER

Fatal Fight Between Two Deer Believed to Have Occurred Centuries Ago.

Portland, Ore.—Mute evidence of a mortal combat that may have occurred centuries ago was revealed to J. K. Magnusson, a timber cruiser on the slopes of Mount Baker.

Lying in the lower edge of Roosevelt glacier were the crumbling bones of a buck deer of more than ordinary size. Digging down into the ice the cruiser uncovered the remains of a second animal, the body in an excellent state of preservation. The antlers of the animals were tightly interlocked, showing that the deer had died in battle.

From the position of the skeleton and body in the glacier Magnusson is of the opinion that they had been carried a long distance down the mountain side. As the glacier flows only four or five inches a day, the battle of the bucks may have occurred centuries ago.

THE BATTLE AGAINST DUST.

We are now emerging from the "winter of our discontent" and it has been a long and severe one too, and are once more face to face with that other problem which is with us during the warmer months of the year—how to get rid of or keep under control the dust.

The dust that commences to blow in clouds from behind every passing vehicle with the coming of the first warm days of spring is an ever-present nuisance, and the authorities now say a menace to health, must be dealt with.

But how?

With oil or water?

And if we decide on either oil or water we have still to answer that other stumper:

How?

To oil or sprinkle one street in spots only does not bring relief in proportion to the cost and effort.

To oil or sprinkle one or several streets only while other streets and alleys are left unmolested to manufacture their material for dirt clouds and turn over the product to the greatest of common carriers to be wafted into every section of the city, is, if not an entire waste of money, not a profitable investment.

Whatever plan is finally adopted should, if it is possible to do so under the laws of the state and city, considering both health and comfort, be done universally throughout the length and breadth of the city.

There are many—unfortunately, too many—people who would, if they could do so gladly contribute their share toward bringing about an abatement of the discomfort and the menace which comes with flying dust clouds. Provision should, if possible be made to take care of these conditions which we must all acknowledge exist.

This problem like many others would be easy of solution if those who could bear the burden would do so uncomplainingly. Those who cannot and will not do their fair share for the general good should be made to see the error of their way and the fact that there are those who would willingly but cannot bear any proportion of the burden, should not be permitted to deny a community relief.

Ideal Fiction

Public Library Should Contain Good Novels

By SAM WALTER FOSS

THE IDEAL attitude of the public library toward fiction should be one of severity, tempered by toleration. A public library should buy all the good novels and buy them in large numbers.

The bad novels it should not buy at all. All a public library, then, has to do in the matter, in reference to any novel, is to discover whether it is good or bad.

This is a very simple thing to state, but a well-nigh impossible thing to do. There are easy-going readers who think there is some good in all novels, and there are implacable haters of modern fiction who stiffly maintain that, at present, no good novels are written at all. From a committee made up of the implacables, the easy-goers and intermediate types of critics the public librarian should get varied estimates of all the novels published, and from these varied estimates draw his own conclusions.

These conclusions will frequently be wrong, but he will have lived up to the best light he has. He will probably find some good novels. To deny that good novels are written today is to make a too sweeping impeachment of our literary output. Let the librarian do his best to find these good novels and then duplicate and reduplicate them many times.

It is undoubtedly a misuse of one's time and a perversion of his intellectual faculties to read fiction, even of the best quality, exclusively. No one knows better than the librarian that there are a large number of readers who never do read anything but fiction. They have lost the power to wrestle with books that deal with realities. The fiction drunkard has lost the intellectual stamina needed to clutch and grip the great thinkers who write real books—science, philosophy, literature. Much fiction has made them mentally flabby—their mental muscles are paralyzed by intellectual dissipation. They are literary drunkards, and all good librarians have an interest in their reformation.

Good fiction presupposes a considerable degree of intelligence in its readers. If it deals with the eternal verities of human nature it must make its readers interested in many and varied domains of thought. A good novel by a real thinker should stimulate its reader to broad investigations, and, sometimes, to long-continued research. It is hard for a librarian, even with the co-operation of many helpers, to select the small percentage of good fiction from the large percentage of the bad. ings before they grasp the importance of fresh air and the simplest sanitary measures for the health of their little ones.

They have curious beliefs as to the advent and death of their babies. One charming superstition forbids all quarreling in a house where there are little children. The latter, so they say, love sweet words, kind looks and gentle voices, and if these are not to be found in the family into which they have reincarnated, they will close their eyes and forsake the earth till a chance offers to return again amid less quarrelsome surroundings.

At the new year, and on all great festivals, the chief "societies" of men, women and children come up to the station to give a series of dances. To the Ekois dancing is one of the main occupations of life. With them the dance provides an outlet both for the dramatic instinct and for religious fervor.

In the whole country there are no open spaces, save those which have been cleared as sites for villages or farms. The Ekois spend their whole lives in the twilight of the beautiful, mysterious bush, peopled to their fancy not by wild animals alone, of which they have no fear, but by were-leopards and all kinds of terrible half-human shapes, and by the genii of trees, rocks and rivers. Here more truly even than in old Greece the terror of Pan is everywhere.

One hears from certain sources of the hardships entailed on the natives in the making of the splendid roads, by means of which the British administration is opening up their tropical and luxuriant "bush" district. No one, however, is quicker than the natives themselves to see the advantages to be gained from such improved means of communication, whether as regards personal safety or trading facilities. On several occasions towns have offered, of their own free will, to do more than had been asked of them. In some cases they have even made a new piece of road on their own initiative as a surprise for my next visit to their part of the country.

The Voters Of Illinois For First Time Will Decide

Presidential Primary In Illinois Overshadows State Issues.

Columbus, O., April 8.—For the first time in the history of Illinois the rank and file of the voters will tomorrow have an opportunity to declare their preference for a presidential candidate. Illinois will also be the first great pivotal state in the present campaign to have a preferential presidential vote, and this fact to a great extent overshadows the contests over state offices, some of which have been running for months.

Three names will appear on the Republican ballot for presidential preference, Taft, Roosevelt and LaFollette. The Democratic ballot will have Speaker Champ Clark and Governor Woodrow Wilson.

Helped Her Husband Kill Himself

Wife of Sporting Editor Says She Held Shears For Suicide.

New York, April 8.—A dark-haired little woman told and retold how her husband, William J. Snyder, the manager and editor of a sporting paper called "Sports of the Times," came to be strangled to death in their apartment. There had been a quarrel over some trivial cause, she said, and she had taken up a pair of shears and warned him not to go too far. He had come up to her and seized her by the hands, in which were the shears pointed toward him, had pulled the point of the shears forward and into his heart. Twice he had stabbed himself while she held the shears, she said, and then he had walked down the hall to the bathroom and gotten into the tub, where he was later found dead. She was held by the coroner without being charged with homicide.

Simpson says he married his wife in Jackson, Mich., in 1898, and they have two children. He mentions one, Daniel Shafer, as co-respondent. The petition is drawn up in legal style.

Uncle Juu Wins Out In Arkansas Primaries

Governor Harmon Sweeps State at County Conventions.

Columbus, O., April 8.—According to telegrams received at Harmon headquarters, Governor Harmon will have the delegates of Arkansas. The Clark and Wilson forces were utterly routed in their efforts to capture the state. They tried to corral the endorsement of the Arkansas Democracy, but were frustrated by the Harmon forces, who swept the entire state. Telegrams bearing this information were sent by H. K. Toney and Meyer Solomon of Pine Bluff. The latter in his telegram said: "The Harmon sentiment ruled supreme in Arkansas, when the Clark and Wilson forces failed to carry the county conventions."

Collieries Are Resuming Work Again

Trouble Brewing in Vicinity of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Today

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 8.—The first break in the lease of the anthracite field is expected to come today. Operators started work at two washeries and prepared to ship coal to market. The washery of W. T. Payne at Luzerne borough and the washery of the West End Coal company at Mocanagua were fitted up for operation several days ago and the necessary men taken behind the stockades.

The Payne washery is a small operation, but working under full steam 400 tons of coal can be daily prepared. The West End washery is a much larger one and will be able to get out 1,000 tons daily.

The district leaders will leave here tomorrow for the conference in Philadelphia. They go with the determination to accept nothing but recognition of the union as basis of settlement.

English Miners Go Back.

London, April 8.—Reports from the mining districts state that with few exceptions the miners are ready to obey the order of their federation and return to work on Tuesday. The men at some points were so anxious to return that they ignored the Easter Monday holiday and resumed work this morning. The remainder are likely to go back to work tomorrow as ordered.

HOW TO TELL AGE OF FISH

Until within recent years there had been ascertained no trustworthy way of finding out the age of fish. It has been shown that mere size does not indicate the age. Reibisch, Heincke and others have discovered that many of the bones, scales and otoliths of fishes have annual age rings, resembling those in tree trunks, and by means of these Professor Wallace and others have now determined the rate of growth of plaice, showing that some specimens attain the age of twenty-five, or even as much as twenty-nine years. Age can now be correlated with size and weight, although it appears that the sexes have different rates of growth.

Columbus, O., April 8.—For the first time since it began its sessions Jan. 8, the constitutional convention can see daylight ahead in its work. Much remains to be done, but work is shaping in such a way that final adjournment before May 10 seems now assured. Indeed, so many delegates are candidates in the primaries May 21 that it is next to impossible to keep them at work longer than May 10.

Expected disposition of the judicial reform proposal tomorrow leaves fewer than half a dozen propositions of such importance that the convention will feel called upon to extend its sessions and take them up. ### GREAT ENGINEERING FEAT

Governor Harmon Sweeps State at County Conventions.

Columbus, O., April 8.—According to telegrams received at Harmon headquarters, Governor Harmon will have the delegates of Arkansas. The Clark and Wilson forces were utterly routed in their efforts to capture the state. They tried to corral the endorsement of the Arkansas Democracy, but were frustrated by the Harmon forces who swept the entire state. Telegrams bearing this information were sent by H. K. Toney and Meyer Solomon of Pine Bluff. The latter in his telegram said: "The Harmon sentiment ruled supreme in Arkansas, when the Clark and Wilson forces failed to carry the county conventions."

SEA'S SECOND THOUGHT

A fisherman of Grimsby, Lincolnshire, was recently washed overboard from the steam trawler Greenwich during a North Sea gale. His companions thought he was drowned, but a great wave threw him back on the deck. He was losing consciousness when he felt himself bumped on the deck, but he clutched at a rope and was saved.

Collieries Are Resuming Work Again

Trouble Brewing in Vicinity of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Today.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 8.—The first break in the peace of the anthracite field is expected to come today. Operators started work at two washeries and prepared to ship coal to market. The washery of W. T. Payne at Luzerne borough and the washery of the West End Coal company at Moanaqua were fitted up for operation several days ago and the necessary men taken behind the stockades.

The Payne washery is a small operation, but working under full steam 400 tons of coal can be daily prepared. The West End Washery is a much larger one and will be able to get out 1,000 tons daily.

The district leaders will leave here tomorrow for the conference in Philadelphia. They go with the determination to accept nothing but recognition of the union as basis of settlement.

English Miners Go Back.

London, April 8.—Reports from the mining districts state that with few exceptions the miners are ready to obey the order of their federation and return to work on Tuesday. The men at some points were so anxious to return that they ignored the Easter Monday holiday and resumed work this morning. The remainder are likely to go back to work tomorrow as ordered.

HOW TO TELL AGE OF FISH

Until within recent years there had been ascertained no trustworthy way of finding out the age of fish. It has been shown that mere size does not indicate the age. Reibisch, Heinecke and others have discovered that many of the bones, scales and otoliths of fishes have annual age rings, resembling those in tree trunks, and by means of these Professor Wallace and others have now determined the rate of growth of plaice, showing that some specimens attain the age of twenty-five, or even as much as twenty-nine years. Age can now be correlated with size and weight, although it appears that the sexes have different rates of growth.

NO MORE WOODEN POLES

Wooden telegraph poles will soon be a thing of the past in New Zealand. In the future they will give place to the more durable poles made of ferrocement. These poles, being uniform in design, will present a more pleasing appearance to the eye than do the wooden poles, which are rough looking and decidedly disfiguring to the streets and the avenues in which they are placed.

GREEN SNOW

In at least three places in the world today green snow is found. One of the regions is in the vicinity of Mount Hecia, in Iceland; another is in Siberia, fourteen miles east of the river Obi and the third is in the South American Republic of Ecuador, not far from Quito.

Mrs. Hulda Rowan, 43 No. Hickory St., Chillicothe, Ohio, says, "The benefits I received through the use of Foley Kidney Pills were remarkable. They cured me of a severe case of kidney trouble, and rheumatism and regulated the action of the kidneys. Foley Kidney Pills deserve all the praise one can give them. Blackmer & Tanquary.

FUEL FROM THE NILE

Delegates To Ohio "Con" Are Tired Out Want a Rest

Many Are Candidates at Primaries and Want to Adjourn.

Columbus, O., April 8.—For the first time since it began its sessions Jan. 8, the constitutional convention can see daylight ahead in its work. Much remains to be done, but work is shaping in such a way that final adjournment before May 10 seems now assured. Indeed, so many delegates are candidates in the primaries May 21 that it is next to impossible to keep them at work longer than May 10.

An endeavor is being made to put to commercial use the waste products of the Sudd, that great mass of vegetation which blocks the Nile at Lake No. 10, extends for some 300 miles, and is so dense in places that elephants can walk on it. There is now being manufactured from the grasses, papyrus, unsoft, etc., which grow above the water, a new fuel called "sudite." It is intended as a substitute for coal, and can be produced at a cost of about one fourth that of coal.

R. J. Howell, Tracy, Ohio, in giving particulars of his wife's recent illness writes: "Her case was the worst I have ever seen, and it looked like consumption. Her lungs were sore and she coughed almost constantly, and sometimes fairly strangled. Her voice was hoarse and weak and she talked in a whisper. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound gave her relief at once, and less than three bottles effected a complete cure." Blackmer & Tanquary.

Stricken With Apoplexy Mr. Duncan McLean Dies

Easter morning was shadowed in Miss Rose, who since her mother's death has devoted herself to making a home for her father. While the utmost sympathy goes out to all the children in the shock of their great bereavement, it is to the lonely daughter, weakened by recent illness that friends turn most of all.

Apparently in the best of health and with absolutely no warning of the eternal summons, the shock to his family and friends was appalling. Mr. McLean had finished his morning's bath and was partially dressed about nine o'clock, when he suffered a stroke of apoplexy.

His daughter, Miss Rose, who was recovering from a severe attack of grippe, and her attendant nurse, were with him, and hastily summoned Mr. McLean's half sister, Mrs. Robert Howat, and medical aid. The stricken man lived two hours and quietly slept away.

Belonging to one of this county's oldest and most prominent families, the son of the late Judge Daniel McLean, and a man held high in public esteem, Mr. McLean's death is one keenly felt, and his demise is sincerely regretted by a large circle of business associates and personal friends.

Most of Mr. McLean's life was passed here, although for some years he resided on his farm in Union county. After his father's death he returned to engage in farming on his farm just on the suburbs of this city, until he retired from active life to make his home on Circle avenue. He was 74 years of age.

Mr. McLean was vice president of the Peoples and Drovers bank and for a number of years has efficiently served as one of Washington's cemetery trustees, he being the third trustee to cross the bar within the year.

It is less than a year since Mr. McLean lost his wife and by a strange, coincident both answered the death angel's call on distinctive days, Mrs. McLean's death occurring on the fourth of July and Mr. McLean's on Easter.

He leaves three sons, Orville and Louis, of Magnetic Springs; Emmett, of Bainbridge, and one daughter.

How Salt Is Farmed

One of the greatest American deserts is what is called Salton Sink, in Southern California. At one time it was covered by the ocean. When the sea lowered its bed became dry and it was found that deposits of salt covered the surface. Here is a picture of what is called salt farming. The farmers scrape up the salt in heaps, loading it into wagons. It is then taken to the nearest railroad station and sent to market like so much wheat or corn. The salt is so pure that it needs no treatment, and the sink for many miles is covered with it.

MARRIAGES AT GRETA GREEN

Original Certificates of Contracting Parties Between 1825 and 1854 and Signed by John Linton to Be Sold.

The original certificates of marriages celebrated at Gretna Green between 1825 and 1854, signed by the contracting parties, and the Gretna Hall Marriage Register, will be sold at Sotheby's. They are in the autograph of John Linton, by whom almost all the marriages were celebrated, and who, after being confidential servant to Sir James Graham at Netherby hall, invested his savings in the purchase of Gretna hall, which he turned into an inn.

His house became the most popular at Gretna for eloping couples, and while Linton had many rivals in the business, his registers are believed to be the most important in existence. There are between 1,100 and 1,200 certificates.

The most noteworthy entry in the register is that of Edward Gibbon

Famous "Lumberjack" Preacher and Former Prizefighter Is Chased to the "Tall Timber."

Duluth, Minn.—An encounter with a pack of timber wolves forced John Sornberger, ex-prizefighter and a convert of the famous "Sky Pilot" Higgins, to spend the night perched on the pinnacle of a log loading derrick.

"I had gone to a lumber camp north of Virginia early in the evening," he said, "and the boss refused to allow me to preach a sermon to the lumberjacks. Angered, I started for the next camp, six miles distant. About nine o'clock I heard wolves, many of them. They began following me, and suddenly

One Went Past With a Snap.

Wakefield to Ellen Turner on March 8, 1826, of which the certificate has been lost. Miss Turner was an heiress, only sixteen years of age, and Wakefield decoyed her from school by means of a forged letter, and induced her to marry him by pretending that her compliance was necessary to save her father from ruin. He was subsequently tried for abduction and sentenced to three years imprisonment, the marriage being annulled by a special act of parliament.

On May 7, 1836, Prince Carlo Fernando Borbone, younger brother of the notorious King Ferdinand II, of the Two Sicilies, was married at Gretna hall to Penelope Caroline Smyth of Waterford, Ireland. Among the most interesting of the other marriages, the certificates of which are present, is that of Capt. Charles Parke Ibbsen to Lady Adela Corisande Maud Villiers, daughter of the earl of Jersey, on November 1, 1845.

In making a runaway match Lady Adela was following the example of her grandmother, Miss Sarah Child, daughter of the founder of Child's bank, who was married at Gretna Green to Lord Westmoreland. The story of their pursuit by the angry banker, who gave up the chase only after one of the horses in his coach had been shot by his prospective son-in-law, is one of the most famous in the famous annals of Gretna Green.

PRIMITIVE PEOPLE

Something About Inhabitants of Blue Ridge Mountains.

Are Direct Descendants of Scotch and Irish Who Came to America in Colonial Times—Primeval Mode of Living Still Exists.

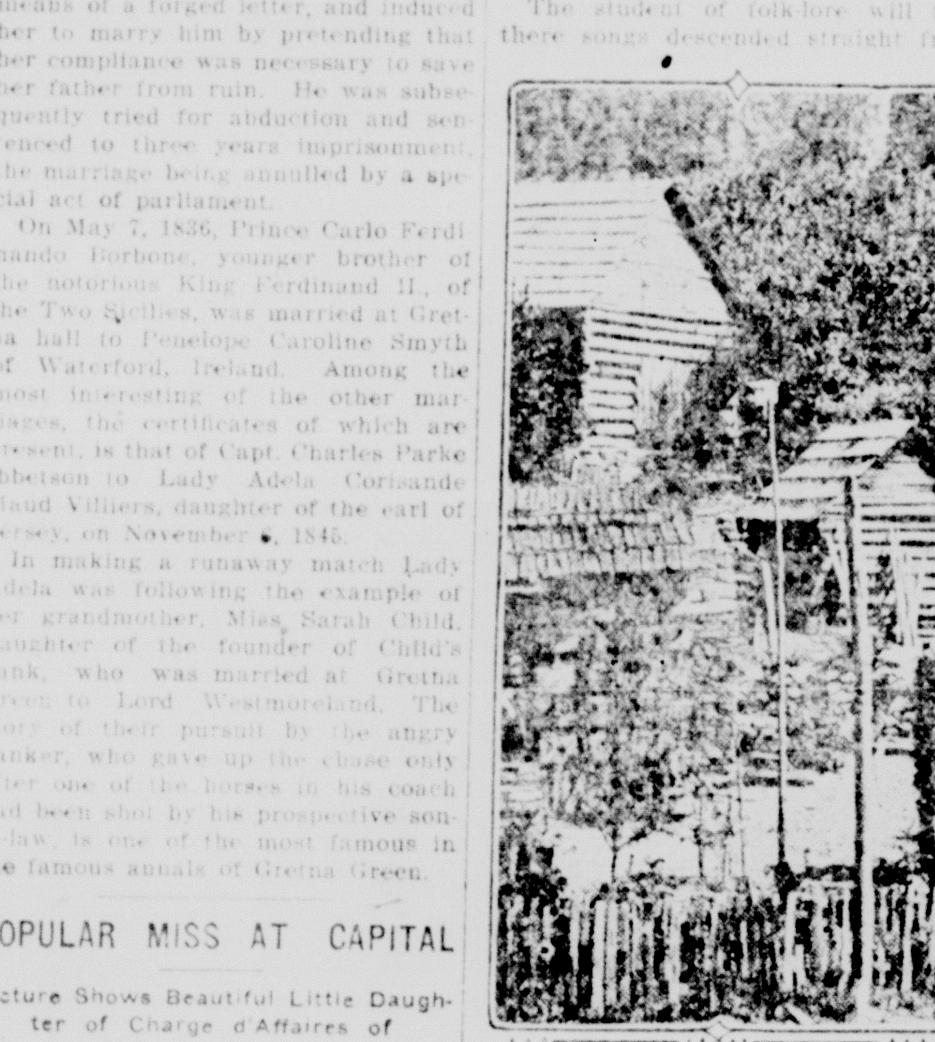

Hillsville, Va.—The peaks and gulches and underbrush of the Blue Ridge mountains have formed an effective barrier against modern progress around the western ends of Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina and the eastern ends of Kentucky and Tennessee.

The mountaineers of that district are direct descendants of the Scotch and Irish who came to America in colonial times. Their language closely resembles that used in Virginia in Queen Anne's time. And sprinkled freely through their drawing jargon are expressions one finds in Shakespeare. In their isolated life runs a strain of the romanticism of the old Scotch Highlands, the fatherland of most of them. They are today the purest type of American colonists to be found in the nation.

There are whole counties without railroads, telegraphs, telephones or even churches. What roads they have follow the course of a stream up the "holler," over the divide and down the next "holler." They simply ford the creeks and in bad weather they do not travel at all.

Hospitality is the law of the land. It is considered sacrilege to charge a minister for board or room and, although they have but little to offer, you are welcome to a good share of what they have. A Sunday school worker in these hills within two months was charged exactly fifty cents for board, room and washing. He was treated to enough fried chicken, country butter, milk, eggs and vegetables and slept on enough comfortable beds to satisfy any ordinary mortal for some time to come.

The student of folk-lore will find there songs descended straight from

MASTERPIECE IN PEARL

An exquisite bit of work has just been completed in southern California by a 17-year-old lad, Nicola Alfano, who come from Bethlehem, Palestine, a year ago with his mother and brothers. It is a reproduction in mother-of-pearl of the famous painting "The Last Supper." In a recess of this work of art, which is carved from 50 pearls, are the disciples sitting at a table with Jesus in the center. Each disciple is carved out of a pearl, as is the principal character at the supper scene. Just over the recess, on the top edge of the frame is shown a mold, in the center of which is the tomb from which the Christ has risen and also the two Marys weeping. On each side, in separate forms, are the angels. The whole is wonderful. Its value is $20,000. The boy will place it on exhibition at the Panama-Pacific exposition. He commenced the work when slightly over 12 years of age, and has devoted eight hours a day since then to it.

STRENGTH OF INDIAN BEETLE

Annie Drake, writing to the English Countryside Monthly from Serampore, Bengal, says: Last week a native servant brought me a longicorn beetle which he was carrying by its feelers, while the beetle was carrying a stone weighing nearly half a pound! But how the feelers could stand the strain (the beetle was carried in this fashion for about 40 yards), and how the legs could retain their hold of a heavy stone which they could not encompass, I cannot conceive! The length of the beetle was two and one-quarter inches; its feelers three inches, and it weighed one-quarter ounce only, while the stone weighed six and three-quarter ounces, measured three and one-quarter inches by two and one-half inches, and was even inches in circumference.

AROUND THE BASES

Baseball's in the air for fair. It's everywhere.

Bridgeport has traded Pitcher Ivor Swanson to Troy for Pitcher Cunningham.

Mobile is to get Outfielder Cruise, last year with Hattiesburg, and drafted by Detroit.

Silver Grob, the veteran infielder with Worcester last year, will be with Lynn this year.

Pitcher Rufus Gilbert has purchased his release from the Terre Haute Central League club.

Manager Isbell at Des Moines may play Eddie Colligan at second base this year in place of George Graham.

The Milwaukee club has purchased Outfielder Chappelle from the Eau Claire club of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league.

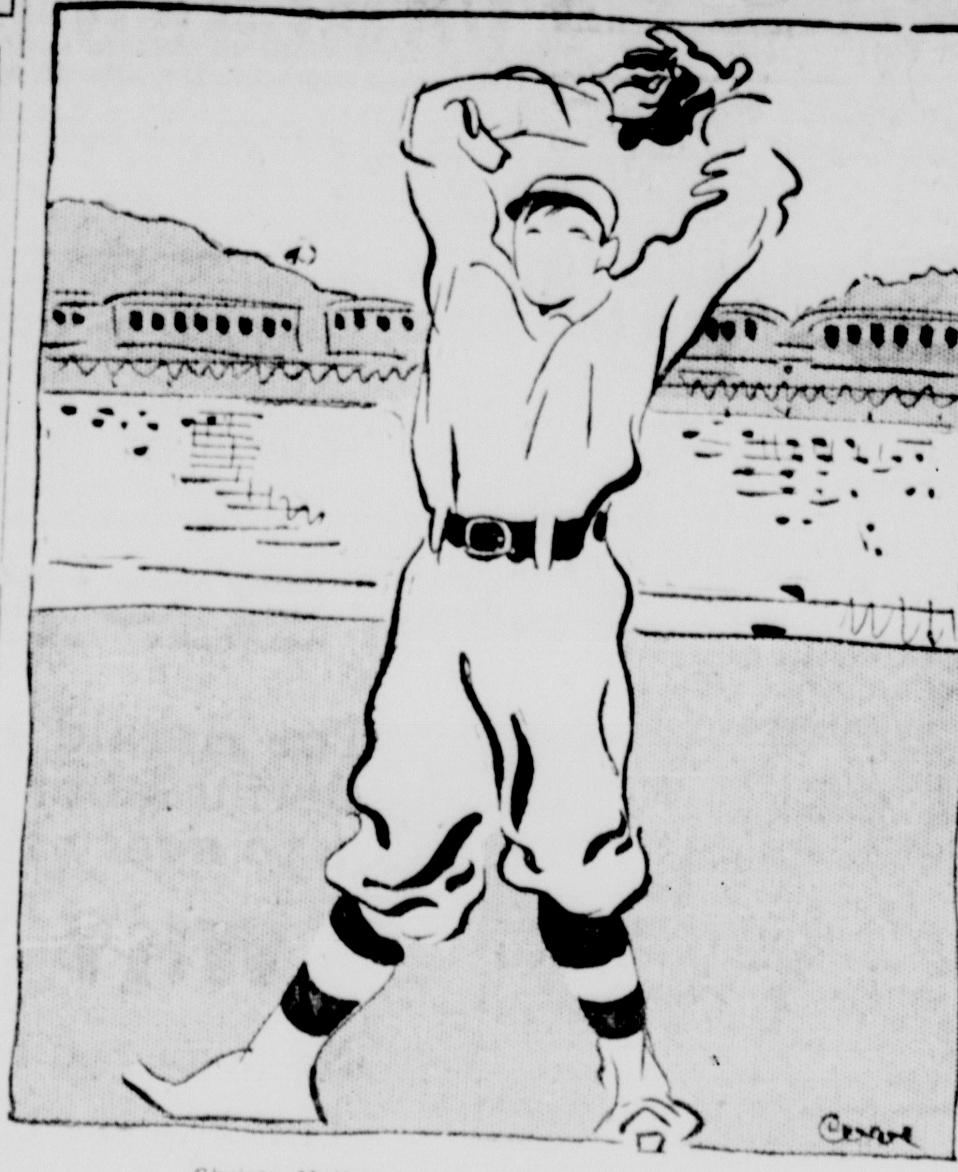

If Montgomery does not get a first baseman from the St. Louis Browns it hopes to get Doc Johnson from New Orleans.

Marty O'Toole, who separated B. Dreyfuss from $22,500, says that his arm is all to the merry, and if that be so the Pirate expense bill ought to prove a valiant worker for Fred Clarke.

STAR PITCHER OF NEW YORK GIANTS

Christy Mathewson as Seen by Artist Cesare.

By HOMER CROY.

You have to put on your glasses, grip your hands and hold your breath till the stars come to find Factoryville, Pennsylvania, on the map. When a freight train backs on the siding you could drive along the right of way without knowing a town was there until you got down to the crossroads and saw the grocery signs. But sometime there may be a monument there that will tickle heaven's blue, ethereal dome, for it is the birthplace of Christopher Mathewson. There—that puts it on the map.

When he was a boy in short trousers and jam he wanted to be a lumber dealer. His idea of the highest, most delirious joy that could come to one on this mundane sphere was to put on a carpenter's apron with a real pocket for shingle nails and another for Number 9's, climb up on a pile and throw down baulk posts or measure joists with a man's folding pocket rule. As soon as school was out each evening he would hurry to the lumberyard and stand around in open-mouthed wonder, watching the dealer check off the ends with blue chalk and walking around as unconcerned as could be with a wonderful flat-sided lead pencil sticking behind his ear. Christy's life has been a regular devil at that, sometimes smoking a cigar in the morning and a cigarette before company in the evening as cool as you please.

The day he landed in New York he had two telescope bags and had to ask his way twenty-two times to get to the Polo grounds, and now every time he wants to cross the street or go around the corner to get shaved he calls a taxicab.

In the winter time he lives in St. Nicholas Place, New York city, sells insurance and plays checkers. If the vice-president of the Consolidated Air, Ozone and Oxygen company was just ready to sign for a life insurance policy for a quarter million, and somebody would come along and sing out, "Say, Christy, I'll bet I can beat you a game," he would jump up from the vice-president and hustle away after a board muttering his awfulest oath: "By George, I'll bet you can't." He would rather play checkers than be turned loose in the kitchen of the Knickerbocker hotel with a two hundred pound can of cake parfait just opened square in front of him and the handle of a tablespoon pointing toward him.

FAILS TO SEE CHICAGO CUBS

Otto Knabe of Philadelphia Thinks
Pittsburg Will Be Strongest Contender for Pennant.

Several players in the National league do not think the Cubs will finish one, two, three in the pennant scramble. One of these is Second Baseman Otto Knabe of the Phillies, who is taking an exceptional stand in declaring that all the clubs will have to travel speedily to beat out Pittsburgh for the flag. It is seldom that a player selects another team in preference to his own to win the championship. But Knabe is one, and here is what he says:

"With O'Toole, Adams, Caminitz, Hendrix and Leifeld as first string pitchers, the Pirates are going to make us all hustle. I have been things not taken place the Giants would have found the going harder and wouldn't have finished as well as they did.

"This year, however, McGraw is going to find that he will have to play better ball. Not only will he have to beat out Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, but he will find that his own men won't play as well as they did in 1911. Margaud, for one, will not be as successful; he won't win nearly as many games as he did last year.

"Chicago appears to be everlasting-ly out of the race. From this distance I cannot see where Chance has strengthened any. He hasn't a good man on first and unless he plays Zimmerman, at third he's going to be up against it at that corner. His pitchers are none of the best; and it's hard to see where the Cubs are going to finish one, two, three."

Yerkes Gets Steady Job.

Steve Yerkes, the little shortstop of the Red Sox last year, may be seen at second during the campaign of 1912.

Yerkes will be fighting for the position with Heinie Wagner, the former captain of the outfit. Wagner's arm has gone back on him and his batting eye had cobwebs on it last season. Unless he improves greatly next spring he is liable to see Yerkes playing his position.

Jimmy McAleer, the new Red Sox president, is said to very sweet on Yerkes, whom he has seen in several games against the Washington club.

He will give Yerkes plenty of opportunity to make good at second. Yerkes can't get balls to his left, but he's a bear on drives to his right. Also his sticking has been very good, and this is an attraction on a team out to the pennant.

Breaks Up Sacrifice Hits.

Walter Johnson, the Senators' big twirler, has a way all of his own of breaking up an intended sacrifice.

When Johnson thinks that the batsman is going to sacrifice, he simply puts all his speed on the next ball.

PICKING UP GOOD BASEBALL PLAYERS IN BUSH LEAGUES IS LARGELY LUCK, SAYS ARTHUR IRWIN.

"Digging in the minors and little jerkwater towns for future diamond stars isn't what it is cracked up to be," said Arthur Irwin, the New York Yankees' veteran scout, who is soon to start on another scouting tour. According to the man whom the Yankees depend upon for their star players, real good baseball players are at a premium these days.

"Scouting," continued Arthur, "isn't like it used to be. There was a time when a man could go through the bushes and pick up all kinds of men; but times have changed since then. The scout who is lucky to pick up one really good ball player in a season can congratulate himself and feel satisfied that he has earned his salary."

Scout Irwin declares there never was such a slim market for ball players as at the present time. "Big league clubs," said Irwin, "are not in the market to sell star players, naturally, and that's why it is so hard for any one club to gather a galaxy of stars. Every club owner wants to hold on to his best men, for they are the ones who bring success to his club. Money cannot buy them. The club owner must rely on the scout, for he is the one man behind the gun, so to speak. He is the man who uncovers the stars."

"I remember the days when money could buy big men; but now clubs must develop them. Few of the leading batters today were purchased for large amounts, but of course there are exceptions. Take Detroit's case with Ty Cobb, for instance. The Tigers got him from a small bush league, but they had to develop him first before he was anything. Most every headliner on the diamond today, after being brought to the majors, had to be sent back to the minors for seasoning."

BALL PLAYERS FROM LINDEN

LITTLE TOWN IN TENNESSEE IS HOME OF FIVE PROFESSIONALS, INCLUDING CLYDE MILAN OF WASHINGTON.

The average city of 100,000 people feels fairly proud when it can boast of having a half dozen professional ball players among its sons, but the record is undoubtedly held by Linden, Tenn., the home of Clyde Milan. Linden is a little hamlet in the center of the state, with a population of 350.

Clyde Milan.
and yet there are exactly five professional ball players who register from there. Milan is the only one in the major leagues. He has a brother who is with Nashville. Then there are two boys named Moribid and another named Paskell, who are playing ball in some of the smaller leagues.

AROUND THE BASES

Baseball's in the air for fair. It's everywhere.

Bridgeport has traded Pitcher Ivor Swanson to Troy for Pitcher Cunningham.

Mobile is to get Outfielder Cruise, last year with Hattiesburg, and drafted by Detroit.

Silver Grob, the veteran infielder with Worcester last year, will be with Lynn this year.

Pitcher Rufus Gilbert has purchased his release from the Terre Haute Central League club.

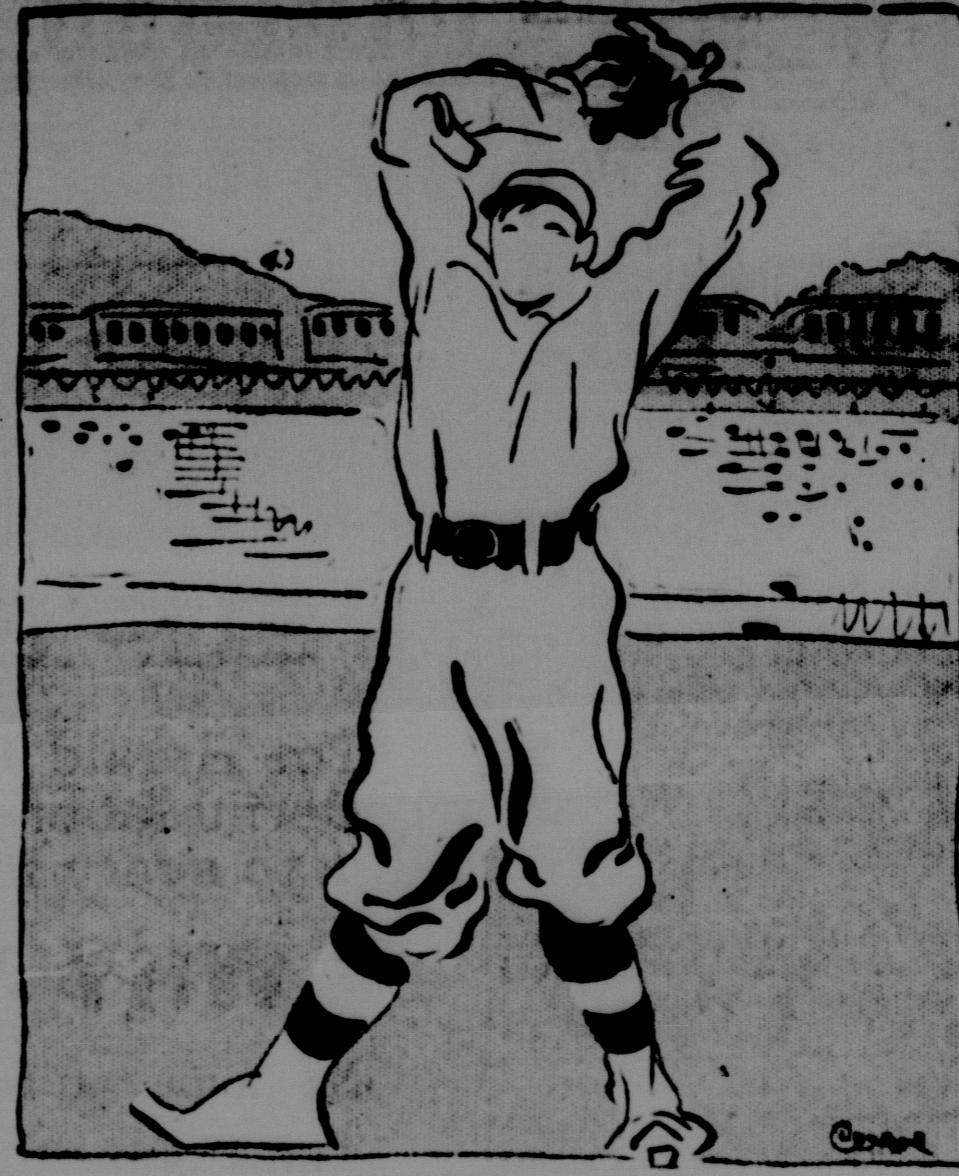

Manager Isbell at Des Moines may play Eddie Colligan at second base this year in place of George Graham. The Milwaukee club has purchased Outfielder Chappelle from the Eau Claire club of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league.

If Montgomery does not get a first baseman from the St. Louis Browns it hopes to get Doe Johnstone from New Orleans.

Marty O'Toole, who separated B. Dreyfuss from $22,500, says that his arm is all to the merry, and if that be so the Pirate expense bill ought to prove a valiant worker for Fred Clarke.

STAR PITCHER OF NEW YORK GIANTS

Christy Mathewson as Seen by Artist Cesare.

By HOMER CROY.

You have to put on your glasses, grip your hands and hold your breath till the stars come to find Factoryville, Pennsylvania, on the map. When a freight train backs on the siding you could drive along the right of way without knowing a town was there until you got down to the crossroads and saw the grocery signs. But sometimes there may be a monument there that will tickle heaven's blue, ethereal dome, for it is the birthplace of Christopher Mathewson. There—that puts it on the map.

For the first professional game he played he received one dollar; now he wouldn't crook his finger for less than forty cents—three crooks for a dollar—getting $300 for each game he pitches.

He went to college but lacked one year of being able to write A. B. after his name in a careless, nonchalant hand.

He used to pitch for the Y. M. C. A., but he came to New York city for the first time over the Erie. The only other thing that can be said against him is that he smokes. He is a regular devil at that, sometimes smoking a cigar in the morning and a cigarette before company in the evening as cool as you please.

The day he landed in New York he had two telescope bags and had to ask his way twenty-two times to get to the Polo grounds, and now every time he wants to cross the street or go around the corner to get shaved he calls a taxicab.

In the winter time he lives in St. Nicholas Place, New York city, sells insurance and plays checkers. If the vice-president of the Consolidated Air, Ozone and Oxygen company was just ready to sign for a life insurance policy for a quarter million, and somebody would come along and sing out, "Say, Christy, I'll bet I can beat you a game," he would jump up from the vice-president and hustle away after a board muttering his awfullest oath: "By George, I'll bet you can't."

He would rather play checkers than be turned loose in the kitchen of the Knickerbocker hotel with a two hundred pound can of cafe parfait just opened square in front of him and the handle of a tablespoon pointing toward him.

FAILS TO SEE CHICAGO CUBS

Otto Knabe of Philadelphia Thinks Pittsburgh Will Be Strongest Contender for Pennant.

Several players in the National league do not think the Cubs will finish one, two, three in the pennant scramble. One of these is Second Baseman Otto Knabe of the Phillies, who is taking an exceptional stand in declaring that all the clubs will have to travel speedily to beat out Pittsburgh for the flag. It is seldom that a player selects another team in preference to his own to win the championship. But Knabe is one, and here is what he says:

"With O'Toole, Adams, Cannitz, Hendrix and Leifeld as first string pitchers, the Pirates are going to make us all bustle. I have been these things not taken place the Giants would have found the going harder and wouldn't have finished as well as they did.

"This year, however, McGraw is going to find that he will have to play better ball. Not only will he have to beat out Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, but he will find that his own men won't play as well as they did in 1911. Marquard, for one, will not be as successful; he won't win nearly as many games as he did last year.

"Chicago appears to be everlasting-ly out of the race. From this distance I cannot see where Chance has strengthened any. He hasn't a good man on first and unless he plays Zimmerman, at third he's going to be up against it at that corner. His pitchers are none of the best; and it's hard to see where the Cubs are going to finish one, two, three."

YERKES GETS STEADY JOB.

Steve Yerkes, the little shortstop of the Red Sox last year, may be seen at second during the campaign of 1912.

Yerkes will be fighting for the position with Heinie Wagner, the former captain of the outfit. Wagner's arm has gone back on him and his batting eye had cobwebs on it last season. Unless he improves greatly next spring he is liable to see Yerkes playing his position.

Jimmy McAleer, the new Red Sox president, is said to very sweet on Yerkes, whom he has seen in several games against the Washington club. He will give Yerkes plenty of opportunity to make good at second. Yerkes can't get balls to his left, but he's a bear on drives to his right. Also his sticking has been very good, and this is an attraction on a team out for the pennant.

BREAKS UP SACRIFICE HITS.

Walter Johnson, the Senators' big twirler, has a way all of his own of breaking up an intended sacrifice. When Johnson thinks that the batsman is going to sacrifice, he simply puts all his speed on the next ball.
